

We advance critical thinking, cultural understanding, and well-being for campus and community through transformative experiences with art.

– LUAG Mission

Message from the Director

Despite the challenges of the pandemic, we had a record-breaking year at LUAG. Attendance soared to 8,325—more than triple our visitation from just four years ago. With gifts and grants at an all-time-high, as well as the launch of a new membership program, our operating budget also doubled over that same period. New partnerships with community organizations such as the Kellyn Foundation, Shanti Project, and Basement Poetry are attracting first-time visitors to LUAG. Dynamic exhibitions like Thinking Through Drawing, created with (rather than simply for) the audiences we hope to attract, are forging interdisciplinary connections and reaching visitors of all ages.

We made significant strides in improving the visitor experience and accessibility, and recommitted ourselves to the ongoing work of diversity, equity and inclusion. We hired our first Coordinator of Museum Experience and Access, Elise Schaffer, who leads our efforts in creating resources and accommodations for visitors with disabilities. Partnerships with the Office of Diversity, Inclusion and Equity and the Africana Studies program, including their co-sponsorship of the landmark traveling exhibition Young, Gifted and Black, resulted in new student-led programming and high-impact outreach. Co-led events with Diversity Peer Educators and the Global Citizenship Program invited participants to utilize artworks as catalysts for critical conversations.

Alongside these achievements, our team continued work with consultant Laurel Molloy of Innovations Quantified, supported by a federal IMLS grant, to articulate a five-year strategic plan. With three pillars of Imagine, Improve, and Include, this new plan will focus on ambitious projects, including a feasibility study for a stand-alone art museum, accreditation, and building on our strong foundation to increase accessibility. In the year ahead, we look forward to embedding and aligning this plan with the University-wide strategic planning process as Lehigh sets its priorities for the foreseeable future.

The past year was a reminder of what can be accomplished with the hard work of a dedicated team and growing support from alumni, friends, and neighbors. We look forward to our continued work ahead!

See you in the galleries,

William B. Crow, Ph.D.
